

New in-house organisation at GeoPost

Paris, 14 October 2005- In a competitive and constantly changing environment GeoPost is confirming its ambition for presence and growth both in France and throughout the world via a senior management team closely drawn around its Chairman and CEO, Paul-Marie Chavanne.

Two objectives govern this organisation:

- To give a sense of responsibility to the subsidiaries' management teams in charge of the performance of each European country;
- To give a sense of collective responsibility to project teams in charge of drawing up and implementing corporate action plans.

The senior management team is now made up of:

- Thomas Lot, Managing Director, CEO of Chronopost;
- Hans Fluri, Managing Director, CEO of GeoPost Germany and responsible for Benelux and Switzerland;
- Alexis Ruset, Managing Director responsible for Corporate strategy and activities;
- Yolaine de Courson, Managing Director and Financial Director of the Group.

Also reporting directly to the Chairman and CEO:

- Kay Phillips, CEO of GeoPost UK responsible for the UK and Ireland;
- Claes Österberg, Managing Director of GeoPost Nordics and Eastern Europe responsible for Poland, the Baltic States, Russia and Central European countries;
- Yves Delmas, Managing Director of GeoPost SEUR responsible for Spain;
- Wolfgang Lehmacher, responsible for international development outside of Europe.

As well as the following functional departments:

- John Acton, Chief Marketing Officer responsible for brand policy and product policy;
- François Copigneaux, Chief Operations and Networks Officer responsible for network policy;
- Jean-Luc Defrance, Chief Information Officer responsible for information systems policy;
- Thierry Habersetzer, Chief Key Account Officer responsible for European key account policy;
- Gilles Norroy, Chief Human Resources Officer responsible for human resources policy;
- Marion Egal, Chief Communication Officer responsible for communication policy.

On 16 November, during the Supervisory Board, GeoPost SA, majority shareholder of the DPD GmbH franchise, will be proposing the appointment of Hans Fluri and Arnold Schroven for the posts of Chief Executive Officers of DPD GmbH & Co. KG
